

Resurrection

April 14, 2020

You've probably seen this picture before. Can you see the woman? Is she old or young? Is she dressed in a fur coat, or wrapped in a blanket? Is her nose big or small? What about her chin? Can you see her mouth?

Share this picture. Find out what others see. Tell them what you see.

Now look outside. What do you see?

I see perennials pushing up through the ground, grass turning green, birds bouncing in the bay, and partridges playing peekaboo. I see people protecting people, making eye contact and smiling, and performing extraordinary acts of kindness.

We are exiled for the good of the realm, and our return is assured. Patience. Promise of new life. The glass may be half full but the tomb is empty.

Carlton Brown